Mesh Banners Uses and Placement

Mesh vinyl banners have a lot of small openings that allow the wind to flow through the banner freely, therefore making it perfect for outdoor use. By having those tiny holes, the life of your banner will be extended as it won't act like a flag. Do not worry about the micro holes in the banner affecting the design of your banner. The holes are so small that they won't be noticeable from a distance, having your design look just as good as if your banner was a regular vinyl banner. Mesh Banners are mainly used outdoors due to the ability to allow sound and wind passing through the material.
Mesh banners can be used at windows as well because it permits daylight going through and allows visibility. You might think that the mesh material will make the design of the banner look faded, but we can assure you that we use top quality ink which will show clearly and vibrantly. Regardless of how many colors your design consists off, it will look great, and they won't change the price!

Mesh Banners Material

Mesh Banners are made of PVC plastic with 50% of the banner surface being small holes. Those holes in the material allow the air and the wind to flow through the banner, without causing excessive damage, therefore, these banners are typically only used outdoors. Their lifespan is supposed to be a lot longer than fabric banners, but they are not quite as strong as regular vinyl banners. Also, being that the surface of the banner consists of microscopic holes, making the banner semi-transparent, the color vibrancy of the design is not going to be too strong. Another thing to consider is that mesh doesn't perform too well in the cold. Extreme cold will make the material brittle.

Hems Hemmed edges are typically used to reinforce the sides of vinyl banners, helping maintain the banner's shape and prevent stretching. This is particularly helpful when grommets are used on vinyl signs.
