Custom 10 oz. Mesh Banners Material

Custom Mesh Banners are made of PVC plastic with 10% of the surface covered in small holes. The plastic used in the material allow the air and the wind to flow through the holes, which reduces the resistance to the wind. These banners are typically only used outdoors. Their lifespan is supposed to be a lot longer than fabric banners, but they are not as durable as vinyl banners. Because of the holes in the surface of the banner consists of microscopic holes, [illegible] Mesh banners are also a good choice for areas where the design is not going to be too strong. Another thing to consider is that mesh banners are not as durable as vinyl. Extreme cold will make the material brittle and could cause it to tear. Overall, custom mesh banners are a good choice for outdoor advertising in areas with moderate weather. Custom Mesh banners are a great choice for outdoor advertising. They are durable, affordable, and easy to customize to your needs. However, you should be aware of their limitations, such as their susceptibility to damage in areas of color vibrancy, before you use them for your next project.
